Thanks to all who came out on a cold evening in Killingbeck, I hope you enjoyed the event.

A few apologies, firstly #24 was moved, rather unbelievably, in the 5 minutes between me putting it out and the first people reaching where it should have been. Secondly #6 was in the wrong place but hopefully most people found it. Finally there were a few without a pin punch. Unfortunately despite starting putting controls out at 16:30, I was still facing a race against time to get them all in position and simply did not have time to check each time or the event would never have started. We are looking at simpler ways of using flags in terrain than pin punches, if anyone has any bright ideas let me know.

Onto the results, and the clear winner was Richard, with a very close battle for first female being settled on time, then a close pack behind where one control made all the difference. I hope the varied points scheme made things a little more interesting for you. I've deciphered the control cards as best I can, although it appears they weren't all handed in or have gone missing. I have had to break down the results as there were people who declared a higher score than on the score card even with the pen additions! I think the cold might have affected some peoples maths! If anyone disagrees with their score let me know at Baildon, see you there.
